

Mrs. Schaudé Will Not Plead Guilty But Fight Kufahl $593,000 PROVIDED IN NEW CITY BUDGET

"For God's Sake Get That Man," Is Her Repeated Cry

This is the story of Myrtle Schaudé, told for the first time in detail. It will be the story told by her on the witness stand when she is making a battle for her life. In Wisconsin she cannot be executed, but should she be convicted of first degree murder, she will confront the probability of a living death for the rest of her natural life behind the grim walls of the state prison at Waupun. That is why she will not plead guilty at the hearing on Oct. 31, although she is said to have confessed, and that is why when her story is told, it will point the finger of guilt, as the principal in the murder by poisoning of Edward Schaudé the husband and the attempt on the lives of her four children, to Ernest Kufahl, whose service in the medical corps had made him familiar with drugs and medicines. It will be Myrtle Schaudé against Ernest Kufahl. It will be the woman pointing to the man and accusing him of mixing the poison for the husband, and telling her how to fix the poison for her children.

Mrs. H. had several things she wanted to get rid of, but she felt that they were too good to throw away or to sell to the ragman. She called the Want ad girl and inserted the following ad:

ONE LADIES' TAILORED SUIT, size 38, man's overcoat, size 40, 2 inches fur coats, other wearing apparel, all in good condition. Phone 2981 or call at 219 Prospect Ave.

Her results were splendid. A letter of inquiry came all the way from Milwaukee. The phone rang continually and Mrs. H. lost count of the number of people who called. Her results were splendid and she is several dollars richer. The next time she has articles she will not hesitate to advertise in the Gazette.

PINCHOT'S ATTACK OPENS CAMPAIGN ON PRES. COOLIDGE

POLITICAL ASPECT OF THE CASE VIEWED IN WASHINGTON.

ALLEN TO RESCUE

Former Kansas Governor to Make Reply to Pinchot on Law Enforcement.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1923, by Janesville Daily Gazette.

Washington—Politics is no longer "adjourned" so far as attack on the administration of President Coolidge is concerned. The battle opposing aspirants for the republican presidential nomination has begun.

Two months having elapsed since the new president took office the opposition in his own party has come, first, from the elements which hope to make an issue of the administration's record as president of farmers, and second, from the groups who believe the administration has been "dry" on the prohibition question.

Henry Ford's broadside of criticism against Secretary Weeks for selling the General plant at Muscle Shoals to the Alabama Power company, an act which President Coolidge has defended, is in line with the cry of the American Farm Bureau here for five-cent fertilizer which Ford operated at the nitrogen plant was to have obtained.

Gov. Clifford Pinchot's vehement denunciation of the policy of the federal administration with respect to conservation of life, and the partly presidential politics and partly prohibition campaign.

To understand the Pinchot speech in which he calls on the federal government to put its own conservation and assist states to cope with municipal problems of enforcement, and to get a clear idea also of what William Jennings Bryan is driving at when he calls on the president and members of the cabinet to take the pledge as trustees as an example to the nation, one must know what is going on in the treasury department.

IN TODAY'S NEWS

The Canadian grain inquiry commission has failed to find evidence that the high grain prices of late have been adulterated with low grade American wheat prior to export.

When Walter Wheelock found himself looking at a grinning skull in the little place of woods on the edge of the Stockman farm in the town of Milton, Sunday afternoon, and hastily left the place, he disclosed what may prove to be another murder mystery for Tootic county and Southern Wisconsin.

Every official act possible was immediately taken to secure all evidence which in any way might have a bearing on the case. But whatever theory may be advanced as to who the dead man was or who struck the blow that crushed in the left side of his skull, or whose hands buried the body in the shallow grave on the edge of the ditch, will necessarily be conjecture, and the imagination may run riot before the mystery is solved, if ever.

Few Facts Outstanding

The skeleton, as stated in the Gazette of Monday, was apparently about 50. He wore spectacles, since a pair was found at the side of the skeleton. The teeth showed the age. One had been pulled out in life and another was filled with silver. He was well dressed, for the clothing which had not rotted away still showed good texture. The overcoat was probably of a green color, the suit of dark material with small stripes. There was one good shoe, lace, which had been dark brown, but whether a derby or a soft hat the fragment of it failed to indicate. He may have been a farm hand, or a worker out of doors and used to walking on soft ground, for the nails in the shoes were not worn smooth, as they would have been had he been used to walking on pavements. The nails were showing, the leather worn away from them.

Tobacco Plug Found

He had chewed tobacco, for a plug was found in the effects. He wore suspenders, carried a bone-handled pocket knife and whatever money he may have had or trinkets otherwise were not recited, the grave failed to disclose.

The body has been there a long time. Tiny roots from the trees close by had grown through the grave and over the dead man's wasting form, twining themselves among the bleaching bones. So it has passed a summer there at least and perhaps was buried early last winter when the ground was frozen. This may account for the fact that about six inches of earth was over the body and the waters from storms of summer and fall had gradually washed away the covering, revealing the story of violence to the chance passerby, through the woods. Not far away to the north, is a corn field, and 80 yards away to the east, is the track of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, Round Lake division.

MOB STORMS CITY HALL IN BERLIN

Stock Exchange Also Attacked; Rioters Quelled After Sharp Fighting.

Berlin—A mob tried to force its way into the Berlin stock exchange this morning, says a Central News despatch from the German capital. The doors were closed and the police tried to keep the mob out of the building.

The mob also tried to storm the city hall, the message states, but the police appeared in strong force, and seemed to be masters of the situation after fierce fighting, in which a number of persons were injured, several seriously.

For the moment, adds the message, the city hall and the stock exchange have been locked, and strongly guarded, and the Wilhelmstrasse closed to pedestrians and vehicles.

JEFFERSON GIRL DAIRY DAY QUEEN

Miss Eva Gross Chosen for Watertown Fete; 20,000 Persons Expected.

Watertown—Holstein dairy men and cattle experts from many parts of the United States are here today to give a day of instruction in the raising of the Holstein strain known as the Homesteads, in the community now known the world over as the "birth place" of that strain.

Along with the dairy men, a bevy of street boys, sawdust-covered, partaking of the famous Watertown goose sandwiches and Holstein milk, served to the holiday throngs. It is estimated that more than 15,000 persons were on hand at noon, and those in charge of the show and sale expected an additional 5,000 persons before night.

Announcement was made by the management of the selection of Miss Eva Gross of Jefferson as dairy day queen, an exciting finish of a race of votes between several contestants. Miss Vera Garthwaite of Oconomowoc was a close second.

Celebratory ceremonies took place during the morning in a program in which the five bands, including the New Holstein high school band, participated. Miss Gross was presented with a diamond ring.

Judging began in the show ring with Robert Hager, Illinois, in charge.

The parade, one of the largest ever seen in this community, containing more than 50 dairy floats, in addition to more than 1000 of other vehicles. Moving picture men were of hand.

Tomorrow, the final day of the show, will be devoted to the sale of stock.

MILTON - EDGERTON C. T. A.

Only 248 cows were tested during September in the Milton-Edgerton Cow Testing association and the majority of these milking were nearing the end of their lactation period. The herd of Ivan Rice produced 664 pounds of milk testing 3.16, containing 17.7 pounds of fat. The six head of Holsteins tested for an average of 949.5 pounds of milk containing 25.7 pounds of fat, returning to the owner $5.02 for every dollar expended for feed. The herd of R. V. Hurley produced 7,251 pounds of 3.6 per cent milk containing 254.8 pounds of fat. The ton head of pure bred Holsteins tested for an average of 725 pounds of milk and 25.5 pounds of fat per cow, returning $4.81 for every dollar for feed.

WISCONSIN DAIRY COWS IN DEMAND IN MANY STATES

Madison—Heavy herds are being made on the dairy in the state by the state by the many buyers from other states, according to A. O. Collentine of the Wisconsin college of agriculture. He reports the demand for dairy cattle is much higher this year than it has been for several years. Widely scattered parts of the nation are represented by recent buyers and men now in the state making purchases. Horner Tague and E. H. Coleman of Kansas made purchases recently; R. W. Latta of El Paso, Tex., was another buyer, while J. S. Engleken, Plymouth, county, Iowa, invaded Dodge county for four or five head of cows in the Hawkeye state. E. W. Montell, agricultural agent from Dorchester county, Maryland, with two brothers from his county in central Wisconsin at this time with orders to buy 40 head of Guernseys and 30 head of Holsteins. Montell plans on working through the county agents in the central part of the state. Fourteen dairy purchases by Dorchester county farmers were made in nearby states, but according to Montell, Maryland has heard of the cow testing associations, disease free animals of Wisconsin, and this is the type of animal which she desires in the building of her milk producing herds.

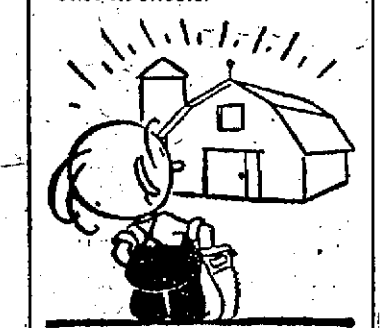

Collentine looks for an increased demand following in the wake of the national dairy exposition which closed last week in Syracuse. Folks become enthusiastic over good stock after viewing the cream of the various breeds at the exposition and a brisk demand for high priced animals results.

"HONEY WEEK" WILL BE HELD NOV. 19-25

Madison—Preliminary plans are well under way for Wisconsin's "Honey Week" which is to be staged Nov. 19 to 25. Wisconsin may well be termed the "land of milk and honey," for besides being a leader in the production of milk her bee products present an impressive sum. Honey producers in the state number 12,000. They maintain approximately 125,000 colonies of bees, whose annual production mounts beyond the 6,000,000-pound mark. In terms of dollars and cents the yearly

L. T. Williams, Clinton, whose herd has headed the association for several months this summer, again had the high cow and herd in September. His herd of eight cows averaged 599 pounds of milk and 37.1 pounds of fat, and the high cow, a grade Holstein five years old, produced 57.1 pounds of fat from 164 pounds of milk.

"A Conservative Wet."

Now and then it leaks out from Milwaukee that the opposition to a La Follette gubernatorial ticket is being picked and that this candidate will be a wet conservative. If that is so the "pickers" may just as well close shop now as later on. It is the belief of this faction that Attorney General Ekern will be selected for governor by the La Follette cabal and thus trained for a battle with Senator Lenroot in 1935. There does not seem to be any consideration given to the fact that Mr. Blaine has determined to succeed himself and has already discounted the La Follette opposition to his nomination. Also that Blaine is a wet governor, if we are to judge by his acts and messages, and there will be no reason why wet republicans should vote against him for a wet conservative.

From the political view taken through a periscope heretofore, it looks as though a conservative republican candidate would have to stand on a more constructive platform than the repeal of state liquor laws and advocacy of the repeal of the Volstead act, to get anywhere. That thunder has already been canned up by Mr. Blaine, backed by the Flaming Oration from the Plains of Dane county. Herman Sachtjen, then there is George Comings who is as dry as Timbuctoo and a candidate of the ultra-radical La Follette wing, now in the field and who will not be dragged loose from his desire to be governor with any easy methods. Mr. Blaine makes no issue of his wetness and Mr. Comings makes no issue of his dryness. How a conservative republican candidate with a wet platform can win on such a single issue is beyond the political ken of anyone outside of Milwaukee. If the opposition wants a wet it can support Blaine; if a dry, then the aged and deep-red hued Comings. That's getting the coin both ways.

If it comes to a show-down where the issue can be squarely put and shorn of all other collateral questions—if the issue is wet and dry only—the dry ticket in Wisconsin will win and anyone who can take the figures of an election poll and make anything else of it is simply not getting west of Wauwatosa. Rock county is naturally a conservative county and the result in 1932 here should be at least a straw to show what is apt to happen to any lamb sent forth with an Al Smith platform in a state like Wisconsin. He would just "die a bornin'."

Cutting Small Expense Leaks.

Cumbersome processes and duplication of labor have cost the government of the United States a large amount of money. In formulating a system for the handling of supplies for all departments the Federal Budget Bureau finds many small things to correct and many leaks to stop. In the past few months these methods have saved in the purchase of auto tires alone, some $25,000. There are 1,000 autos in use or owned by the government at the national capital and each department was buying tires through its own organization. There was much objection to mobilizing all the purchases under one head but it was accomplished by the Budget Bureau. Favored dealers objected strenuously but the saving of 25 to 45 per cent on other supplies along with the tires was answer enough to these objections. In the city of Janesville the same method pursued by the general government has been in operation since the new council went into office with a consequent large saving to the taxpayers. More business in government appears to be a successful rule.

The greatest complaint the wets have seems to be that the present style of liquor makes one sick instead of drunk.

Vermont Remains in the Union.

The election of Porter Dale as United States senator from Vermont is assured in November following his nomination by an overwhelming vote. The election is a "dry" victory in that Mr. Dale was emphatic in his advocacy of law enforcement and the integrity of the 18th amendment. Before election it was frequently stated that Vermont was about to break away from its support of prohibition laws and the constitution and be counted among the states acquired by the brewers and others in the Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment for their new United States. By the vote at the election it will be seen that Vermont stands steadfast. As Commissioner Haynes says, the wet support is in spots only. One of these spots will be dried up to a considerable extent when Mayor Dever gets through in Chicago, and New York may reform itself when it finds that poison instead of liquor is being drunk. The solace for the A. T. B. A. is found only in a few corners of the world when men of alien minds and alien relationships dominate.

The air war of the nation will be declared about December when congress goes into session.

A NATIONAL BALANCE SHEET

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington.—Uncle Sam is one of the world's largest owners of real estate, improved and unimproved. He holds title to great stores of coal, oil and all kinds of minerals. He owns and operates big irrigation projects, a railroad and the only water highway connecting the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. He has vast possessions in the form of ships—all kinds that sail the sea and air. He has manufacturing establishments and scientific laboratories and immense stores of supplies necessary to the upkeep of a business concern that spends four billion dollars a year.

And yet Uncle Sam doesn't know how much he is worth and none of his hired help has known since the day he first started in business. This business man or a corporation that was so unbusiness-like would end in bankruptcy or a receivership, but Uncle Sam has escaped that because he is immune to such proceedings. He has been able to muddle through for almost a century and a half without ever having a real balance sheet, a statement of assets, liabilities and net worth.

However, this state of affairs is shortly to be corrected as part of the program to put more business into government. The controller general's office force is making a study of a centralized accounting system and of a system of accounts. This is now being installed in the departments and it is expected that within two years there will be uniformity in all government accounts.

When this has been effected it will be possible to strike a balance, which will be supported by statements showing, first, the cost of the organization units of the government; second, the cost of operation by activities; and third, the cost of operation classified according to character of expenditures. This latter will show current expenses, fixed charges, expenses in acquiring property, payments on the national debt, and capital outlays for rights and obligations—that is, those expenditures of the government made for investments, treaty obligations, repayments of deposits, refunds, rewards and indemnities.

Uncle Sam has had a good example set for him by the Philippine government, which publishes him a balance sheet every year. It summarizes which shows what is to be expected within the balance sheet for the United States, presents the Philippine assets in the following order:

Public Domain.
Fixed property—Land, buildings and improvements, public highways and bridges, harbor and waterway improvements, sewer and waterworks, lighthouse and beacons, public parks and monuments, docks and wharves, artificial wells, irrigation systems, telephone, telegraph and cable lines, electric transmission lines, equipment offset by accrued depreciation of fixed property.
Permanent and long term investments—real estate, loans and advances, stocks and bonds.
Quick assets—Cash, supplies and materials, sales stock, accrued interest receivable and accounts receivable.

Preparations.
United States Liberty bonds.
Encumbered liabilities.
All of this in the aggregate, shows the total assets of the Philippines. The liabilities are similarly classified in detail, and the difference is the net worth of the Philippine government as a going concern.

To get the value of the real and other fixed property of the United States, Col. H. C. Smith, chief co-ordinator of the bureau of budget, has a committee that is making an inventory and evaluating these properties. When this has been completed a balance sheet can be prepared for each governmental department or agency and by a consolidation of all these balance sheets congress and the general public will be given a complete statement showing whether Uncle Sam is solvent, or the degree of his solvency.

The cash situation of the government is how shown in a daily statement issued by the treasury department. This itemizes the cash assets and cash liabilities of the government, and also includes a classified statement of receipts by sources and of disbursements by purposes of expenditures. It is not in any sense, however, a balance sheet that tells the complete story of the government's financial condition.

Uncle Sam's business is of such an immense volume, and he has done business so long in such a slipshod manner, that the installation of a uniform system of accounting has been a big job. It was first necessary to make a comprehensive survey to determine the kind of system that was best in order to produce the data required by the bureau of budget and by congress. This called for many months of laborious work and the officials directly interested say that the result is a long step toward putting the government on a strictly business basis.

The average citizen when asked that this is being done is likely to be more interested in learning when it will lead to reductions in federal taxes. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has pointed out that if government revenues are squandered or such things as a soldier's bonus, elaborate and unnecessary buildings, harbors and wharves, which are built for no other purpose than to place local taxation must increase to provide funds for the regular and proper functions of government.

"The federal government is doing everything in its power to effect economies," he says, "but the fact is too often lost sight of that this is not a country of one government, but of many governments. The American system is a tremendously complicated and expensive one, with tax-paying bodies overlapping one another in a manner which makes the burden a very heavy one for the taxpayer. Only a very rich man could stand it. British taxes sound very heavy, but in actual fact the average Englishman pays less than the average American."

State and local taxes have been increasing while federal taxes have decreased, according to Mr. Mellon. From 1920 to 1922, federal taxation dropped $38.78 per capita to $22.40, while in the same period, state and local per capita taxation increased from $22.88 to $33.24.

In actual revenue raised the figures for last year are: Federal taxes, $3,655,703,000; state and local taxes, $3,648,151,000.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

AN OLD FRIEND.
I met an old friend yesterday,
A comrade from the far-away,
And glad was I his smile to see,
For this is what he brought to me:

The schoolhouse from the Long Ago,
The boys and girls I used to know,
The little home on Sibley street
Where all the youngsters used to meet.

The games we played, the things we did,
The secret places where we hid,
The pranks of all your youthful crew,
The punishments we sometimes drew.

A living book he seemed to me,
Fresh come from memory's bindery,
A book whose leaves were edged with gold,
So many merry tales he told.

He walked alone, and yet I swear
A troop of good old folk were there,
For back to us he seemed to call,
Our lost companions, one and all.

A hundred spirits danced about,
I heard them sing, heard them shout,
And for an hour (O truth! I mean)
I lived with them, a boy again.

Who meets an old friend on the way
Meets all the joys of yesterday,
The laughter and the tears he used to know,
And all the charm of Long Ago.

Who's Who Today

JAMES M. BECK.
Among the men most prominently mentioned to succeed Col. George Harvey as U. S. ambassador to London is James M. Beck, now solicitor general of the United States. The appointment is probably not to be made for some weeks, however, as Harvey is not expected to resign before the announced time of Jan. 1.

Beck has been solicitor general for two years. He was born in Philadelphia, July 9, 1861. He was graduated from Moravian College, Bethlehem, Pa., in 1880, and received a law degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1887. He served as U. S. attorney of the eastern district of Pennsylvania from 1890 to 1900 and assistant attorney-general from 1900 to 1902. On July 1, 1902, he became solicitor general.

Beck was a member of the law firm of Shearman and Sterling, New York from 1903 to 1917 and of Beck, Crawford and Harris, New York, from 1917 to 1921. He is a trustee of the Mutual Life Insurance company and a director of the Mechanics and Metals National bank.

Mulherberg College, U. of Pa., and U. of Mich., have all conferred the degree of LL. D. upon him.

He is the author of a number of books, "The Evidence in the Case," 1914; "War and Humanity," 1916; "The Reckoning," 1918; "The Passing of the New Freedom," 1920. He has also delivered many orations on notable occasions.

IMAGINARY NEURALGIA

Some morbid folk who only occasionally take a glance at this disappointing column persist in thinking that I persist in thinking that the skill a physician requires for the successful injection of the nerve to relieve neuralgia is just such skill as the modern dental surgeon uses in blocking the nerve of the jaw before extracting or doing other operations painlessly.

Aside from applications of heat, in various forms, no external remedy has much value for the relief of neuralgia. Severe applications should be avoided lest they mutilate; mild counter irritants like camphor may be applied to the face or the most popular menthol wintergreen salve called analgesic balm, with care to keep it out of the eyes.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

I have catarrhs. I have been to specialists, without encouragement. I am not getting any better. I am hoping and not applications. I am hoping and not applications. I am hoping and not applications.

I mentioned several times a book "How I Cured Myself of Tuberculosis." I have written it and the disease did not leave the address nor price of the book. Will you please give me the information? (G. J. M.)

Answer: It is a suggestive fact that I did mention perhaps half a dozen times a pamphlet which is a reprint of an article by Dr. H. H. Stoker in the Journal of the Outdoor Life for June, 1921. "How I Won the Battle With Tuberculosis" is the title of the article. It is a story of a man who fought and won the battle against the disease. It is a story of a man who fought and won the battle against the disease.

Well, a nerve can lie, too. When a nerve gets the habit of lying one of the best ways to reform it is to let it know how it feels. It does not know how it feels. It does not know how it feels. It does not know how it feels.

Q. How many sweat glands are there on the human body? (L. H.)
A. The total number is about 2,000,000,000, or 200 million. The perspiration is formed daily. It is a perspiration increases in quantity with increase in temperature until a certain critical point is reached, when it is a marked increase and appears as visible sweat.

At the Theatres

AT THE APOLLO

As always with winning shows, the Apollo Winthrop Co. opened at the Apollo theatre, Monday night, for a seven days' run, with a capacity house, no opening bill. Where the River Shannon flows, a four-act Irish comedy, abounding in laughter, aside from an interesting plot. Adolph Winthrop played the part of the newspaper man, Tom Anderson, in love with Sylvia Montague, done by Flora Prentice. William McFarlane, who plays the lead in many of the productions, was Daniel Murphy, who was running for senator and in the Souther was his close friend, Mathew Hogan. Hugh Adams and Charles Hammond played villain parts, that of father and son plotting against the senior and seeking to marry his rich ward, Percy O'More, who came from "Where the River Shannon Flows." Helen F. Russell was the leading woman, taking the part of the Irish girl capably, giving an altogether pleasing presentation. Marion Ashley was cast in the dowager part of Sylvia's mother.

Two splendid numbers of vaudeville were given between acts. M. C. Souther gave a reading, "Kelly's Dream," and sang Kipling's "On the Road to Mandalay." Charles Hammond sang a song, "The Wonderful World of Make-up." An extraordinary duet set with hoops.

Beginning Wednesday, matinee performances are to be given in connection with the nightly shows. On Saturday and Sunday nights two shows will be presented.

The program for the week is as follows: Tuesday, "The Wonderful World of Make-up." Wednesday, "The Wonderful World of Make-up." Thursday, "The Wonderful World of Make-up." Friday, "The Wonderful World of Make-up." Saturday, "The Wonderful World of Make-up." Sunday, "The Wonderful World of Make-up."

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Edgar, Quenton, Bartholomew, had two nephews named the same, sons of two brothers. One had been absent in Europe for a term, the other had returned to America to make his home with his uncle. The nephew who had been absent in Europe fell in love only to learn that the other Edgar was understood to be an accepted member of the family. The nephew who had been absent in Europe fell in love only to learn that the other Edgar was understood to be an accepted member of the family.

"I rushed—I was terrified to leave him alone even for an instant, but to cross him in his least wish might mean his death, as I fled like a wild woman through the halls, first to Mr. Edgar's room, then downstairs to Miss Orpha and later, still after I had seen these two on their way to Mr. Bartholomew's room, to the rear hall and Mr. Quenton's door."

"What did you do there?"

"I both knocked and called."

"What did you say?"

"That his uncle was worse, and for him to come immediately. That Mr. Bartholomew found the difficulty in my thinking and wanted to see him all before his power to do so faded."

"Did he answer?"

"Instantly opening the door and coming out, he was in Mr. Bartholomew's room almost as soon as the others."

"How could that be? Did he not stop to dress?"

"He was already dressed, just as he rose from dinner."

"What followed has already been told; I will not enlarge upon it. The burning of the one will in the presence of Orpha, Edgar and myself, with Wealthy Starr standing in the background, Uncle's sudden death before his could last wishes be found, and the shock we had all received at the astonishment shown by the doctor at his patient having succumbed so suddenly when he had fully expected him to live another fortnight."

The excitement which had been aroused after this and the hour being late, the inquiry was adjourned, to be continued the next day.

"And what did you do? Did you give him the dose his condition seemed to call for?"

"Yes, and my heart is broken at the thought. He showed it. Tears were welling from her eyes and her whole body shook with the sob she strove to suppress."

"I did not suspect—mix a fresh draught—do anything but put that spoon filled with doubtful liquor between his lips. But how could I imagine that any one would tamper with the medicine in that cabinet. That any one would—"

Here she was stopped again, perceptibly this time, and her head was thrown back as if she were crying. She saw the first signs of anything in Mr. Bartholomew's condition approaching collapse and how long it was after she gave him the medicine.

"Some little time, I was not watching the clock. Perhaps I slept again—I shall never know, but if I did, it was the sound of a sudden gasp from behind the curtains which started me to my feet. It was like a knife going through me, for I had a long experience with the sick before I came to C—and knew that it foretold the end."

"I was still sure of this when I fell over to look at him. He was awake, but I shall never forget his cry. 'Wealthy,' he whispered, exerting himself to speak plainly, 'call the children—call all of them—then come. Without delay—' and is over with me—I shall not live out the coming day. But first, the bowl—the one in the bathroom—bring it here and let me stand and wash my hands—lighted—don't look; act! It was the master ordering a slave."

A better way for treating bowel stoppage—the ideal way

Don't take laxatives when the bowels are inactive. They are merely a whip and harmful. They lead to more doses, larger doses, and then the cathartic habit.

Three-fourths of all humanity's ills are caused by constipation. Laxatives often cause it, but they never cure.

Medical science has found a better way—the ideal way. It is an emulsion called Milk of Moss, which tastes like a creamy dessert. The basis is poka rock oil, which cannot digest, cannot be absorbed. So it lubricates the bowels, softens the contents, leads to easy, natural action.

Countless granules of nolyec rocks are emulsified with the oil. That is a sea moss which absorbs liquid and swells to a myriad little sponges in the bowels. They supply the needed roughage.

Healthy bowels lubricate themselves. Fibrous foods, if eaten in plenty, supply the essential roughage. But sluggish bowels show those things to be lacking. Then Milk of Moss supplies them in a most effective form.

That is the right and natural way to keep the bowels open. Stop taking physics. They only lead to further trouble. Never let children start the laxative habit. Simply restore the right conditions in this harmless, pleasant way.

Milk of Moss means much to you and yours. We want you to know that, and now. So we will buy a bottle for you if you send this slip.

60c Bottle Free Send this coupon with your name and address to: NOLINE LABORATORIES, INC., 379 East Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill. and we will mail you an order for your druggist for a bottle of Milk of Moss, which he will charge to us. Only this reminder so you won't forget.

OKLAHOMA CITY IN GRIP OF GREATEST FLOOD OF HISTORY

in hour, had spread to within 18 blocks of the principal business districts, both from the south and southwest corners. So far no loss of life has been reported, but numbers of persons are believed to be imperiled.
A swirling current with a powerful undertow defeated efforts of firemen to reach 15 persons marooned ed in the Mulligan grove district in the lowlands. Row boats were unable to breast the current and effect a rescue after earlier efforts had resulted in the rescue of several persons.

One man is said to be hanging desperately to a raft in a church while the angry waters sweep through the structure below him. A family of 12, five of them small children, also is marooned in a house in the Grove district, it was reported.
In a small grocery store a man his wife, proprietors of the place, are isolated, awaiting the resources, who so far have been unable to reach them.

Ordered to places of safety last night by city authorities, approximately 15,000 residents abandoned their homes in an area in the flood path comprising 17 city blocks, and are being sheltered and fed by hastily formed relief organization.
National guardsmen are holding the stricken residential sections to prevent looting in possible respite.

while merchants and traders are removing their basement stock and records to places of safety.
Fighting waters battered through the dam embankments, despite the frantic efforts of workmen to save them by hastily erected sand bag levees.
Bank Battered Down
The west bank was torn open last night. In a few moments seven feet of water was pouring through, sending the river stage to 28 feet. By midnight 300 feet of the bank had been carried away. For two hours the 23 foot depth was maintained. Then the town's curious attack against the east barrier was victorious and almost the full sweep of water in the dam was released.

This sent the river's crest to 25 feet, a height never before attained. With the rise, emergency squads sent forth warnings of the flood waters with the aid of fire sirens. Streets south of Grand avenue, a principal business street, became choked with refugees.
Relief stations were set up and personal warnings were broadcast by the local telephone company to each of its subscribers in the threatened district.

Refugees Are Aided
Street cars and volunteer motorists, venturing to the very edge of the advancing water, aided in bringing the helpless and crippled to havens of safety provided by civic and fraternal organizations and hospitals.
A stream of grim refugees trod on foot, backs bent over the burden of pitiful little bundles of belongings, frantically in haste from their homes, which only a few minutes later were charged by the swirling waters.

Crowds of curious persons milled and pushed on down town corners, while automobiles and horse-drawn vehicles clogged the traffic ways leading to the river bottoms.
A cold drizzle of rain added to the misery.
UNCEASING RAINS OF WEEK RAISE RIVERS
DALLAS, Tex.—Many streams in the north, east, central and west Texas area are at flood stage, following almost a week's unceasing rain in these regions, according to reports received here today. The property loss is expected to be heavy. Railroad traffic has been delayed because of washouts. Telegraph and telephone service is also commiserated.

Receipts for World Series Pass Million Dollar Mark

Copyright 1920, by Geo. McManus

Busy Man's Sport Page

By FRANK SINCLAIR

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—After a two-year trial in three counties of Wisconsin, home talent baseball seems about to enter a larger territory. "Big" Dave Davidson, president of the two different leagues in two successive years, has started an important movement in calling a conference in Goettingtown for next week. Some will attend out of curiosity, but many will be present for the definite purpose of learning more about successfully conducting baseball in smaller communities and for larger ones. Davidson has dreamed and studied home talent sports for years. He has put his ideas into being in one territory and for two years has had a vision of a statewide organization.

STRANGELY, greater success has attributed the movement outside of Davidson's own efforts. Yet, not so queer, after all. The Southern Wisconsin league took all of Davidson's scheme, analyzed it and made some changes that promoted more elasticity while retaining the fundamentals. Some teams work better than others, and as they feature this method of attack it would seem that Davidson is not wedded to either a hard, low pass or a high lob. The method of passing has far less to do with the successful execution of the forward pass than other factors, such as deception and clearing the receiver. Some teams work better than others, and as they feature this method of attack it would seem that Davidson is not wedded to either a hard, low pass or a high lob. ALL BADGERDONT is hungry for baseball that stands upon its own feet. Citizens who love the national sport have tired of the "pay" teams composed of strangers of self-advised and seldom-demonstrated reputation. Towns the state over have heard about it and they see in it a way to enjoy a game that was invented for pleasure and not for worry—for delight seven days of the week, not for excitement one day and boredom the other six. Home talent baseball is the pastime properly rated. The Southern Wisconsin Inter-county league is now forming a statewide system of leagues to more popularize the plan and a state championship to stabilize it—to provide "playgrounds" to replace playgrounds.

With the Fighters—Ernie Goosman was given a shade-over Frankie Schaefer in their 10 round bout at East, Chicago, in the Young Stripling was given the decision of most newspaper men who watched him fight a time 10 rounds with Tommy Burns at Detroit. Goosman of Iowa threw Ivan Orloff, Russian wrestler, in straight falls.

On the Gridiron—Wisconsin will meet Indiana Saturday, the game being held at the state capital. Ohio State stresses overhead game in preparation for Michigan—Tennessee and Illinois will clash in one of the big games of the season. Northwestern is preparing to give Chicago a stiff game—Minnesota will tackle North Dakota and Purdue will engage Washington State. Duke swings into practice for Princeton—LaCrosse looks the class of the Wisconsin Normal conference, having defeated Lawrence, 18 to 0.

JANESVILLE FANS GIVE BILL LATHROP GOLD WATCH CHAIN

The reason why the Fairies lost the second game of the double header Sunday and the championship of the four Wisconsin Mid-West league teams is out. Shortly before the second game started, Bill Lathrop, Janesville manager, presented with a beautiful gold watch and chain and a receipt case by the Janesville fans.

The presentation was made by the team. What a beautiful gift! The presentation was made by the team. What a beautiful gift! The presentation was made by the team. What a beautiful gift!

RECORDS FOR HOME RUNS SMASHED BY RUTH AND STENGEL

New York—Six world's series home run records were broken and two more were equalled in the spectacular battle between the New York Giants and Yankees, while several other hitting records were tumbled.

Casey Stengel, whose two home runs gave the Giants their decisive margins in the team victory, and Babe Ruth, whose pair of round trip wallpops gave the second game to the Yankees, were the chief record breakers.

Stengel's feat of supplying two winning home runs in one series bettered the mark of Frank Baker, who won two games for the old Athletics with circuit wallpops, but in separate series, 1911 and 1912.

Three records fell to Stengel. Two homers in a single game had been accomplished three times before in series history—by Pat Dougherty, Harry Hooper and Benny Knuff—but in none of these cases did the wallpops come in successive innings, as did Ruth's. The Yankee star bagged his in the fourth and fifth innings of the second game.

Babe's third home run series, in the sixth game, broke the record of two first set by Dougherty in 1903, and equalled by seven others, including Stengel, this year. Two club records were broken. The total of 10 home runs for the contending teams is a new mark, while the rival teams, with five apiece, share the honor of shattering the former high record of three, set by the Philadelphia Athletics in 1921 and duplicated by the Boston Red Sox in 1912.

Whitely Witt added his name to the list of batting heroes with a record of successive hits, including a brace of doubles in as many consecutive innings in the fourth game.

One of the most unusual batting feats of the series, and of any other series, was that of Ed Muehl, who gathered all three of the hits off Joe Judge in the fifth game. Muehl got a single, double and triple and scored the Giant's only run of that game.

ATTENDANCE ALSO SMASHES RECORD; 301,430 AT GAMES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

New York—The total attendance for the six games of the world's series, 301,430, eclipsed by more than 20,000 the previous attendance record set in the world series of 1921 between the same teams.

The receipts for the six games also set a new record, being $1,003,815, passing the million dollar mark for the first time and surpassing the previous record, set in 1921, by over $100,000. The largest crowd of the series and the largest of all time attended the fifth game, at the Yankee stadium, Sunday. The paid admissions numbered 32,817 that day and more than 50,000 persons were turned away at the gates.

The players' pool was greater by more than $100,000 than any other, and as a result, each player of the winning team will receive about $6,500 and each losing player about $4,363. Each second place club will receive about $27,208 and each third place club about $18,139.

Cheers and Tears Mark Scenes After Last Game

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

New York—The final incident in the great drama comes: the players leave the green carpeted stage as the crowd shouts: "The curtain falls. But this is not the end. Behind the scenes, in the dressing rooms the repressed emotions of the players, victorious and vanquished, burst forth. This is the human side, the real drama.

In the dressing room of the victorious Yankees is Miller Huggins, that hit of a man, the manager, proud of his victory. He is surrounded by his players, who are all smiling and laughing. There is Babe Ruth, who struck out at the most dramatic moment of his career, being tossed and patted in the ribs, then pushed over a bench all the time laughing as if his ponderous sides would split. Aaron Ward yells like a Goliath with seven scalps at his belt. Sad Sam Jones is no longer sad, he's singing Hallelujah at the top of his voice.

PANIES THE ORDER.

What is a One-Cent Sale? It is a sale where you buy an item at the regular price—then another item of the same kind for 1c. As an illustration: The standard price of Opeko Coffee is 51c. You buy a lb. at this price, and by paying 1c more, or 52c, you get two lbs. Every article in this sale is a high-class standard, piece of merchandise, just the same as we sell you every day at regular prices and have sold you for years.

A New Way of Advertising. This sale was developed by the United Drug Co. as an advertising plan. Rather than spend large sums of money in other ways to convince you of the merit of these goods, they are spending it on this sale in permitting us to sell you a full-size package of high standard merchandise for 1c. It costs money to get customers, the loss taken on this sale will be well spent if the goods please you.

SALE BEGINS WEDNESDAY MORNING AND CLOSES FRIDAY NIGHT. LIMIT OF
TWO OF ONE KIND TO EACH CUSTOMER.

SAVE THIS LIST, CHECK ITEMS WANTED AND BRING IT WITH YOU.

MAIL ORDERS FILLED OF $1.00 OR MORE IF CASH ACCOMPANIES THE ORDER.
